The recital was given almost wholly in German, even the number from Gounod's which is usually rendered in Syracuse University. The same institution, French or Italian, being sung in the Teuin 1892, conferred on him the hononary detonic language. Hugh McGibeny, who is foremost among local violinists, assisted Mrs. Raschig in her recital, and was heard twice on the programme. Mr. McGibeny is entitled to the respect of all who admire the legitimate school of violin playing. He disclosed again his sound musical qualities last night, relying solely upon his musicianship to impress his hearers. He rendered the serenade of Drdla and D'Ambrosia's canzonetta very effectively and responded to the demands for something more by playing an old Irish air with variations-a number which afforded him an opportunity to show his technical skill. During the second part of the programme he played Sarsate's difficult "Faust Fantasie" in brilliant style. A group of Schumann's beautiful songs.

Eduard Behm's "Ich bin eine Harfe" and "Wagner's "Der Engel" were the German numbers given by Mrs. Raschig on her second appearance, and her recital was brought to a close with charming interpretations of Goring Thomas's "Winds in the Trees" in English and Weil's "Spring Song," the latter with a violin obligato by Mr. McGibeny. The piano accompaniments were played in a most praiseworthy manner by Miss Lillian Josephine Adam. The recital was one of the most artistic ever given by local musicians, and was in every other way a great success.

TWO CREATORE CONCERTS.

Italian Bandmaster Again Mightily Pleases His Audiences.

The magnetic Creatore pleased another good-sized audience at Tomlinson Hall last night and once more the great Italian bandmaster and his admirable company of instrumentalists were applauded to the echo by enthusiastic people. Creatore is surely a leader of wonderful temperament and the more one sees of him the less does one the students are expected back in time to take any stock of the criticisms directed at his extravagant method of conducting his musicians. Let him indulge in his extravagant mannerisms when the results he obtains are so remarkable. He "feels" the music and is able to convey that feeling to his players as no other conductor is capable of doing. The last concert of the series was another of the sort that pleased everybody. Creatore's own march, "Columbus," was given as a kind of cocktail with which to whet the appetites of the listeners for the good things to come. The Thomas overture, "Mignon," Verdi's chorus from "Lombardi" and a grand selection from Ponchielli's "Gioconda," with solos by Signor Pierno, Signor Croce and Signor Iafisco made up the first half of the programme, and Liszt's magnificent Rhapsodie No. 2, the sextette from Donizetta's of the band, and the always-inspiring overture from Wagner's "Tannhaeuser" out the second half, together with the soprano solos of Madame Berili. The singer was either in much better voice than upon the opening concert or else Donizetta's 'Convien Partire' was peculiarly suited to her, for her vocal work was of a very high order of merit and won loud demonstration of approval. She gave as an encore number, "Love at Thy Window," in English. AFTERNOON PROGRAMME. The afternoon programme was productive of much enjoyment to an audience that was not nearly so large as it should have been. As is the custom of the bandmaster, the concert opened with one of his own marches, "American Navy," a new piece which has a great deal of spirit in it. Suppe's ever popular overture, "Poet and Peasant" is played by every band in the world, no doubt, but Creatore's musicians succeed in giving it an interpretation that makes it seem almost like a new composition. This was the second number, and the intermezzo, "Naila," followed, and was also beautifully rendered. Instead of the Wagnerian number, "Entrance to Walhalla," the favorite, "Il Trovatore" was given, and the first cornetist of the band. an excellent musician, distinguished himself with his splendid playing, although there is no solo part in the work. The overture, "Zampa," by Harold, Chopin's immortal "Funeral March," and Verdi's "Traviata," made up the rest of the band numbers and all were presented in a manner that aroused the enthusiasm of the audience, the Chopin selection, especially, being played as it has seldom, if ever, been played before by a band. Signor Carpio, the leading clarinetist, was the soloist of the afternoon, and his playing of Verdi's difficult "Un Ballo in Maschere." and another number not on the programme, won much applause. The programme was artistic from beginning to

It is learned from the local management of this brief musical festival that while not a great financial success, the attendance at the concerts was as good as had been expected and that the great expense of bringing the famous bandmaster and his instrumentalists to this city was entirely covered by the receipts. This is gratifying, for Indianapolis always has been known as a prohibitive place for band and orches-tral concerts, with the possible exception of the entertainments given by the popular Sousa. Creatore has come and he has conquered, and if he ever chooses to return to this city it is a foregone conclusion that he will be greated by much larger audi-ences than during his brief stay this time, as he is a musician who will be talked about for months after he and his magnificently trained musicians have taken their departure. Mrs. Talbot's Second Recital.

The second of the series of recitals that is being given under the management of Mrs. Ona B. Talbot is scheduled to take place a week from next Tuesday evening in the assembly room of the Claypool Hotel.

Mrs. Martha Van Wie. Matinee Musicale To-Day. The Matinee Musicale will introduce a new feature in its regular amusement season this afternoon by giving a charity Thanksgiving programme at the Propylaeum. The concert will belong to the series of fine musical entertainments which this society is giving, but will be open to the general public. No regular admission price will be charged, but those attending the concert will be expected to contribute a Thanksgiving offering at the door, the amount of the offering being left entirely to individual decision. The members of the society will share in the contribution as well as those not belonging to the Matinee Musicale, and all of the money thus obtained will be turned over to the fund that is being raised for the new Hospital for Incurables. The programme that has been prepared will be one of exceptional interest and will be made up of both plano and vocal music. The vocal soloists will be Mrs. Swain, soprano, and Mr. Taylor, baritone. CLEVELAND'S SCHEME FAILED.

He Tried to Victimize Mosler Safe and

Lock Co., and Is Behind the Bars. A. C. Cleveland, of Chicago, was being tried in the Police Court yesterday morn-"Lucia," with solos by the star performers | ing on a charge of being drunk, when suddenly his trial was terminated and he was re-arrested by Detective Gerber and slated in the turnkey's office on a charge of attempted forgery.

> resentative of the Mosler Safe and Lock Company, entered the office of H. J. Reidy & Co. and introduced himself to the bookkeeper. Before leaving the office he sent a telegram to the Mosler Safe and Lock company, asking that it wire him at once $15 in care of H. J. Reldy & Co., Indianapolis. He then left the office and told the bookkeeper that he would return soon The Mosler company became suspicious on receipt of the telegram and wired the local agent here to investigate, as Bachelor had only a day before received a check from them for $200. Detectives Asch and Manning saw Cleveland in a saloon late Monday night and, believing him to suspicious character, locked him up at the police station on a charge of being drunk. Detective Gerber, who had been assigned to the case, believed at the time that Cleveland was the guilty man, and he called the messenger, who took the tele-gram from the office of Reidy & Co., to appear in the Police Court. From a number of persons on the prisoners' bench the messenger identified Cleveland as the man who had sent the telegram. After being questioned for some time Cleveland admitted that he had sent the telegram, and said he was in no way connected with the Mosler Safe and Lock Company. He will be given a hearing before Judge Whallon

Samuel Howard, However, First Appropriated All the Money.

Samuel Howard, a colored resident of the city, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives Holtz and Bray and slated at the police station on a charge of petit larceny. Howard stole a pocketbook belonging to Miss Edna Reynolds, an employe of the Woman's Exchange, at 221 North Pennsylvania street. The pocketbook contained $5.15, which he appropriated to his own use and then tossed the purse in a stove in a barber shop on Indiana avenue. The detectives recovered the iron frame of the purse from the ashes, and Howard confessed his guilt. He also admitted several other thefts during recent months.

CITY NEWS NOTES.

for the magazine Charlotte Taylor Arrested.

Charlotte Taylor, a colored servant, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Lancaster and Kurtz and slated at the police station on a charge of grand larceny. The girl, it is said, has been making a practice of robbing the homes of persons where she was employed, and recently she stole a valuable diamond ring from the home of a family in Woodruff Place. She has been wanted by the police for some time, but managed to elude them until yesterday.
